UK Outlook for Saturday 10 Jul 2021 to Saturday 24 Jul 2021:
Despite confidence remaining low through this period, the emphasis is on fine and dry weather for the majority of the UK through much of the rest of July. Some northwestern areas may perhaps experience slightly more rain and more cloud than elsewhere, but throughout there is a very low risk of thundery conditions, especially in southern areas, and more likely later in the period. Above average temperatures continue to maintain the strongest signal, which increases the possibility of some very warm or hot spells occurring.
